A Voice From the Asylum.

Ed. Journal: We noticed an article in yesterday morning's Statesman, in regard to the capture of the two runaway convicts by that darling officer, Mr. Busick, which sounds very amusing to an eye witness. If it wasn't for the presence of mind and fleetness of foot of Assistant Carpenter Moore, of the asylum force, those convicts would undoubtedly have been going yet. Mr. Busick did not capture them, nor had he anything to do with it. Arthur Moore captured them without gun, knife or club, and Officer Busick helped bring them back. We would take it, from the actions of Officer Busick at the time, that the state doesn't allow him to carry a gun.

While we don't blame Mr. Busick for protecting his own interests and holding his job, we do think that Mr. Moore deserves all the praise, and justly deserves a reward for his quick action in capturing these desperate men, who, if they had been successful in their escape, would probably have murdered two or three good men before being recaptured, besides terrorizing the whole state of Oregon for two or three weeks.

Mr. Walker Whiteside.

Walker Whiteside, one of the best actors this country has produced, and one who has fitted himself for the important position he now holds by 14 years experience in classic drama at the head of his own companies, will make his appearance at the Grand opera house in a new modern play, "The Magic Melody," of which great things are promised. Mr. Whiteside is quite well known in this vicinity, chiefly for his Shakespearean portrayals, and it will therefore come somewhat as a novelty to see him in another class of drama. In the new vehicle the young actor portrays a violinist who is struggling to find the way to the upper musical circles, and by those who have seen the play, his portrayal is said to be one of the most satisfying bits of acting that is known to the American stage. Mr. Whiteside is supported by an admirable company of players, and his managers, Liebler & Co., have supplied the usual adequate production.

NAMED GRANT SCHOOL

Arbor Day Exercises a Great Success in North Salem

There was a large and thoroughly devoted gathering of people and children at the North Salem school Friday, when Arbor day exercises were conducted under the direction of the teachers and Principal Peebles.

The children's program is published elsewhere.

Speeches Were Made.

After singing "America," Prof. Peebles introduced Col. E. Hofer, who highly complimented the teachers on their excellent work, as shown by the children's program. He also spoke of the high grade of work done by the Salem board of education, and this was heartily applauded. Col. Hofer made an appeal for better support for the public school. He said more money was being demanded of the people of Marion county for so-called institutions of higher education than the people were spending on the higher grades of the public schools, and yet hundreds of children never received any education but what they received in the public schools for every one that went to a state college.

Tribute to Judge Boise.

The speaker paid a high tribute to the character and public service of Judge R. P. Boise, whose funeral services were being conducted at the same time not far away. He held him up as a model citizen, who could with safety be patterned after in every detail of his private life and public career. He compared him to one of the grand oaks that stand on the hillside, weathering the storms of a century, and standing when all the other monarchs of the forest have been cleared away.

The Grant School.

Col. Hofer closed with an eulogy to the character and public service of General Grant, a man who had been showered with the wealth and honors of the whole world, but by misfortune had died poor, so poor that he had not even an officer's suit in which to be clothed for his burial, or a sword to lay upon his coffin. As the school in North Salem had been named Lincoln school he suggested that the North school be from this day on named the Grant school. This met with hearty approval from all present, and a petition will be presented to the school board by the patrons of the North school.

Rev. Errett closed with an entertaining address that delighted the children and grown-ups equally. It was very suitable to the occasion, and showed him to be a felicitous speaker.

Principal Peebles closed the exercises with some very appropriate remarks, saying that it was the good, the true and the beautiful in life and nature that it was their object to bring before the minds of the young, and he thanked all the children and the parents and the teachers—not overlooking the efficient janitor, Mr. Unruh, for the parts they had taken in making the gathering a great and splendid success. After visiting and inspecting all the rooms and the grounds the crowd departed.

The Price of Health.

"The price of health in a malarious district is just 25 cents; the cost of a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes Elia Slayton, of No. land, Ark. New Life Pills cleanse gently and impart new life and vigor to the system. 25c. Satisfaction guaranteed at J. C. Perry's druglist.
